GOSPEL - MATT. 23:1-12

Love God and Love Your Neighbour As Yourself!

Dear People of God, we celebrate today the Thirtieth Sunday in Ordinary Time (A). The Liturgical readings call us to reflect on the greatest commandment of the Law: Love. We are to love the Lord with our whole heart and our neighbour as ourselves. In fulfilling these two great commandments, we hope to become models of faith and imitators of the Lord who gave Himself totally for our sakes. With the strength that Christ gives us, we can celebrate with the joy of the Holy Spirit this great Commandment of Love which once had to be imposed on humanity under threat of God's avenging anger.

In today's Gospel reading, there is a tricky question for Jesus. The Sadducees tried, without success, to ridicule and shame Jesus' teachings about the Resurrection with the story of the woman who had seven husbands (Mt 22:23-33). They now try with a question about the most important Law. There was no agreement or consensus among the religious groups about this question. If Jesus responded in one way or the other, He would have taken sides for the one group against the other. A lawyer asked: which is the greatest commandment of the Law? Jesus replied: "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind... you shall love your neighbour as yourself". In His answer, Jesus goes beyond the debate to a real-life spent in loving God and one's neighbour. Christ put the love of God and neighbour on equal footing: the love of God and neighbour are inseparable. One cannot claim to love God and hate his neighbour. The love Jesus teaches today is an all-inclusive love: one that is committed to the good of the other. The "other" can be anybody or anything. Jesus' answer summarizes our Christian faith. When we love, it must be unconditional, unlimited, and entire. It appears easy to say and repeat when asked, yet difficult and challenging to practice. To know the right answer without living it is not the way of Christ.

The Commandments of God or the "Law", concern two realities: the relationship between people and God; and the people themselves. Israel was conscious that one cannot love God without loving other people who are created in God's Image and Likeness. The love of God was especially to be shown to the poor and the needy. The Wisdom Books stress that to insult the poor is to insult their Creator (Prov 14:31; 17:5) while to help them is to lend to God (Prov 19:7). The Prophets equally insist that the only sacrifice and fasting pleasing to God is to behave justly, especially to those whose rights have been denied (Am 5:21-24; Is 58; 61:1-3). St Matthew's well-known parable about the Last Judgment, where Jesus identifies Himself with the hungry, stranger, sick, homeless, etc., (Mt 25:40,45) affirms the idea that the most vulnerable in our communities and societies need our love and in doing so we show love to God. In the Gospel, Jesus shows that loving God with all our heart, mind and soul comes first; but the love of one's neighbour has necessarily got to accompany it if it is to be authentic. They are really two sides of the same coin and cannot be separated from each other. This kind of love does not come naturally or easily; that is why we must "will" it. It is a conscious act done in the name and for the sake of God.

The first reading from Exodus helps to understand and makes practicable the great Commandment by expanding it and inviting us to be compassionate and benevolent toward the most vulnerable in society. Such people include the strangers, widows, orphans, the poor, and the suffering. In our world today, we mostly find situations so contrary to this Biblical teaching: strangers are most times exploited economically and emotionally; the poor, weak, and vulnerable are mostly oppressed and condemned to live in misery and impoverishment. Our readings challenge every Christian to welcome the stranger, empower the weak, provide for the poor and needy, and comfort the afflicted. As true disciples of Christ, love alone must rule our lives, constantly and consistently reflecting the compassionate and loving face of Jesus who loves unconditionally.

May we not be caught up in showing our love of God through long prayers and spiritual activities while we refuse and neglect any practical involvement with the poor in our locality. Praying to God we do not see is not as disturbing to us as the poor and the excluded who live among us. Our faith as Christians, however, always challenges us to see God in each other and to acknowledge that we cannot obey the first great commandment and neglect the second. The Law is Love of God and Love of neighbour. They are the two legs of a healthy, transforming, impactful Christian. We cannot have a private, personal spirituality, independent and isolated from the world around us; nor can we love our neighbours, but have no relationship with Jesus, or the Trinity. Through both, we receive grace and mission; and our discipleship of Jesus becomes complete. For us Catholics, concrete criteria of how we love God are in our prayer and worship as a Church. Faithfulness to our Sunday obligations and daily prayers are "thermometers" of love for God. These specific requirements of the Church are reliable measures of our love for God and they prevent us from deceiving ourselves when someone might claim to love God and yet never pray. Love of God and neighbour are two legs of our Christian life and we need them both.

Sincere thanks to one and all for generous contributions, in kind and cash, toward our Laity Week Charitable Works and the World Mission Sunday. God bless and reward you for your generosity.

We are united in prayers for our brethren who are suffering as a result of the spillage of the Volta dam. Let us all contribute in kind and cash to alleviate their pain and suffering. God bless you.

We share the joys of all our school leavers. Take good care of yourselves and lend a helping hand at home. Remember the most important Law always: to Love the Lord your God with your whole heart, soul, and mind, and your neighbour as yourself. Do not forget your Bibles and Catechism. Be interested in knowing more about God, His Church, and our Moral Life. Please, let your presence be felt in your parishes; the Church needs you most! May God crown our efforts with success. God bless, protect, and keep us safe. Pax!

Please be reminded to stay well, healthy, and safe. Be not afraid to attend Mass. Remember to observe the safety protocols. Your life is dear to us!

Have a Fruitful and Blessed Week!

God bless and keep you safe.

Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Pray for Us.
