Prophetic Role: Living and Speaking God’s Word!

Dear People of God, we celebrate the Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, Year B. Today’s readings throw light on prophets, inviting us to reflect on our prophetic role in our homes, families, workplaces and communities. Ezekiel, Paul and Jesus appear in the three respective readings, manifesting their vocation as ambassadors and prophets of God. God asked Ezekiel to go and preach to the rebellious Israel. Paul, during his ministry, experiences the power of Satan as he is afflicted by a “thorn in the flesh” while Jesus is met with misgivings and rejection by His own relations. However, none of them gave up; they had to carry out their task. We, the prophets of our time, cannot give up.

An important thing to recall about Biblical Prophets is that they are called to speak to others God’s Word. Prophets must, first of all, be able to listen to what God is telling them in the depths of their hearts and then must preach what they have heard, without changing or adding anything. They should not worry about the outcome of their mission: “Whether they listen or not, this tribe of rebels will know there is a prophet among them”. We tend to think of prophets as people who only predict the future. After all, everyone is interested in what is going to happen; and many are those who claim to be able to tell us the future. There is a growing interest in horoscopes and psychic readings these days. Predicting the future was not the only role of prophets in the Bible. Their Calling is to be God’s agents; to be the conscience of the nations; to reprove evils that others ignore; and to alert the people to the spiritual sickness that is growing among them.

Prophets spoke about the abuse of the poor by the influential and rich, the moral cancers that were eating away at the nation from disregard of the Commandments, and the blasphemy that occurred when religion became just window dressing rather than a serious commitment. They spoke of the impending disaster if all these continued to go on. They were moral doctors. Doctors do not primarily tell us the future. They do, however, tell us the truth that has a future. Similarly, prophets were the diagnosticians of Israel’s soul. Unlike the professional prophets who delivered their spiritual diagnosis for a living, much like the political commentators of our time, Biblical prophets were individually called by God to speak His Word. They were inspired by the Holy Spirit Who, as we profess in the Creed, has spoken through the prophets. They were given a message for Israel and also for all time. One thing about true prophets is that none of them was very popular. They criticized the ways things were, which never makes a person popular.

Prophets are expected to be focused on the task that God gives them. The prophet Ezekiel is told in our first reading that he will face the rejection of his message but his mission is to speak the truth despite apathy and resistance. St Paul speaks about his mission of preaching God’s Word despite his “thorn in the flesh”. He may be referring to a physical ailment of some kind that seriously debilitated him. We may also have some thorns in the flesh, which are not necessarily physical ailments but could be certain people or events in our lives when we are to speak God’s will. St Paul teaches us that we do not have to be perfect to be instruments of God. Likewise, Jesus in the Gospel is misunderstood and rejected by the people of His hometown out of prejudice. They could not go beyond knowing Him as “the carpenter, the Son of Mary, the brother of James and Joset and Jude and Simon”. They question themselves: “Where did the man get all this...?” But He never gave up. If people close to us will not listen to us, it does not mean nobody will listen to us. We should not give up speaking the truth.

These facts about the prophet’s life are dear to us because as a Church, a Parish, and Individual Christians, we are called by virtue of our Baptism to speak and live God’s Word in the world around us. In our bit to fulfil our prophetic mission comes trials, doubts, misunderstandings and rejection. What if, like Ezekiel, we are not successful? Some claim that after 2000 years, the whole world should be Catholic or Christian, however, the internet seems to spread faster than the Gospel. Paradoxically, the internet does not require a change of heart and life; and the preaching of the Gospel is never finished. Like parenting, it starts all over again with the birth of each baby. What if like St Paul we have our thorn in the flesh, a personal problem that we have to address? We cannot wait for our life to be perfect before we speak and live the truth of God. If we wait for our life to be perfect, we might wait forever. We are called to be faithful, not to be problem-free people. What if, like Jesus, those closer to us do not listen to what we have to say? Probably those closest to us fail to see the truth of what we have to say because they are so close. We should never let their rejection keep us from our prophetic roles.

We are encouraged by the protagonists in all three readings never to give up in situations of doubt. They were empowered and sustained by the power of God working in them. Jesus was aware of His role as the prophet sent by His Father amidst rejection by His people. Paul experiences the power of Christ who assures him, “My grace is enough for you”. And Ezekiel is assured that “whether they listen or not, this tribe of rebels will know there is a prophet among them”. When we follow God’s precepts and be His messengers, there will be moments of trial, misunderstanding and rejection. But we will always be strengthened and sustained by the plentiful grace of God. Let us remember our prophetic roles in some of the statements we make in personal conversations when issues of Church, morality and faith arise. People talk to us who will never talk to a priest. We might be the only link to Christ and His Church they will ever have. There is the example we give to our children, the seeds we plant by our example that may not sprout right away but will later on, just as the example of our parents has stayed with us in later life. By our Baptism, we are called and sent, not only to grow in grace ourselves but also to carry God’s Word into a new generation. May we never downplay our prophetic role!

Thank you for your contribution towards the successful Launching of the 2024 Annual Harvest and Thanksgiving. God richly bless you.

Dear students, while on Campus, please make the Chaplaincy and its activities part of your daily lives. You are a prophet of God: do not downplay such a role wherever you find yourself. Pax!

Please, remember to stay well, healthy and safe. Be not afraid to attend Mass. Observe the safety protocols. Your life is dear to us.

Have a Blessed and Joyful Week.

God bless and keep you safe.

Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Pray for Us.
