Free To Choose Christ: As For Me and My House, We Will Serve the Lord

Dear People of God, we celebrate the Twenty-First Sunday in Ordinary Time, Year B. After celebrating the Solemnity of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Body and Soul into Heavenly Glory, and her Queenship over Heaven and Earth, our hope and destiny, we are invited to choose between the Living God and the other gods in today's readings. Will you desert your covenant with Yahweh? With Peter, however, we are urged to profess and renew our faith in the Lord, the Bread of Life, who gave Himself up for us all. As we celebrate the marriage feast of Christ with His Church, Christians consciously choose Him who is the Holy One of God.

A decisive moment is one in which one makes an important and influential decision. However, it is a temptation to "follow the crowds" as they say; to float along with the stream, to live from one day to another and somehow never make any fundamental decisions. Some people resist at all costs having to decide. They let choices be made for them by events, other people, or the world around them. They do what others do; think what others think; choose what others choose; say what others say; and accept what others accept. They especially allow the surrounding culture and ideas to make the spiritual and moral choices that shape their life and soul. Something similar seems to be happening in the account of the renewal of the covenant in today's first reading.

Joshua observed that the Israelites were falling prey to the pagan culture and rituals of the Canaanites. They were actually picking up bits and pieces from the cultures of the local inhabitants. He thus called them to take a decisive action saying: "Choose today whom you will serve": whether to give their allegiance to the God of the Exodus or the gods of the surrounding culture. This was done in a detailed covenant ceremony in which all the people participated upon their entrance into the Promised Land. The ceremony served as a conclusion to the Pentateuch (first five Books of the Bible), as well as the Book of Joshua itself, and it likewise serves as a preface to the rest of the biblical narratives concerning the life of the people in their land. The people of Israel chose the God of their fathers and their response is held up firstly as a model for us, and secondly, as a warning for us to be prepared, because sooner or later we all come to the point where we have to decide who we will trust and serve. It is our "Joshua moment".

The choice of who to serve may not come to us in a Joshua manner but in other ways. It may be when a loved one or we are diagnosed with a serious illness. It may be when we are faced with financial losses because we follow the Christ and Gospel. It may be when we hear gossip and insinuation about others and are tempted to join in. It may come when we stand for the right instead of cutting corners. In all these who will you trust and serve? It may also come in marriage when one is faced with the need to make sacrifices to save the marriage. Sacrifice in marriage is almost an unpopular word today. But for St Paul, sacrifice is the very heart of Christian marriage. That is the meaning of our second reading from his letter to the Ephesians.

This reading may lead to a rib poking by husbands to their wives. "Wives should be subordinate to their husbands..." In St Paul's time, in a society where women were not seen as having many rights, the weight of his remarks is not to wives but to husbands.

The passage looks at the husband-wife relationship and begins by setting the fundamental principle that should guide the behaviour of all the members of a Christian family home. "Be subject to one another out of reverence for Christ". So, no one should try to dominate anybody else. Married couple give their love to each other by looking after each other. A life of love is neither easy nor comfortable. It demands self-denial, self-giving, and control of our passions. Thus, Paul writes; husbands sacrifice yourselves for your wives, as Jesus sacrificed Himself for His Church. The centre of Paul's teaching is not about wives but about husbands. He shows how faith in Christ can give even a crisis in marriage a meaning beyond itself. The sacrifices people make in a marriage in deciding to follow Jesus is a Joshua moment in their lives.

In the Gospel, Jesus observed that some of His followers found His teaching difficult and they reacted to it by withdrawing. He had spoken of Himself as the Bread of Life and how we must eat His Flesh and drink His Blood to have true life within us. This is a critical moment in Jesus' life and a decisive moment for His hearers. Before this, He is a popular, heart-warming teacher Whom everyone follows. Now, He calls for a decision. Some say "This is hard to take and they depart". His talk of their eating His Body is too much for some of them, an impossible demand on them, and so they decide to follow Him no more. He then turned to the Twelve and, giving them the freedom to make a decision, He asked: "Will you also go away?" Peter answered: "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life; and we have believed, and have come know, that you are the Holy One of God". Though they also found His word difficult to understand, they continued to trust in Him and to follow Him. Nobody who hears the message of the Kingdom as preached by Jesus can remain indifferent to it. We are often tempted to abandon Jesus and His way of life, to live a life less demanding which will bring more immediate satisfaction. To leave Jesus would be short-sighted. If we lose Him, we lose the source of true life. St John recorded this entire episode in chapter six for the Christian reader because every age has its own "crisis of the Eucharist". Every generation and every person must make a decision and choice. Choose today whom you will trust and serve!

May Mary, Our Mother, Queen of Heaven and Earth, accompany us for the rest of the month. Do not forget your Rosary!

Dear students, Jesus has the Words of Eternal Salvation, there is no reason to leave Him. If we lose Him, we lose the source of true life. We pray Journey Mercies and God's protection upon you as you go home. Let your presence be felt in your home parishes and offer a helping hand. Pax!

Please remember to stay well, healthy, and safe. Do not be afraid to attend Mass. Observe the safety protocols. Your life is dear to us.

Have a Blessed and Joyful Week.

God bless and keep you safe.

Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Pray for Us.
