Saved By the Unconditional Love of the Father!

Dear People of God, on the Fourth Sunday of Lent (C), traditionally known as Laetare Sunday, we celebrate this Mass in the joy of forgiveness and gratefully eat the manna, the food that our Father gives us for our journey to the Kingdom, where His banquet is prepared for us. Having arrived in the Promised Land, the Hebrews celebrated their deliverance from affliction, hardship, and distress in the Passover. Christ, our Passover, has entrusted to us the message of reconciliation: inviting us to forgive one another and celebrate the unconditional and abundant love of God our Father. The people of Israel did not reach freedom by themselves, their own strength did not save them, but by God. Likewise, the younger son of the parable did not find his way home by himself, he was led back by the freely-given, unlimited love of his father. The unconditional love of God the Father saved them.

Today, Laetare (“Rejoice”) Sunday, in the old Latin Liturgy, so-called from the first word of the Introit (Entrance Antiphon), sets a tone of joyful anticipation of the Easter Mystery, as does the permitted use of Rose-Coloured Vestments, signifying that a pause in the rigours of penance may be appropriate at this stage of the Lenten journey. The readings of the first two Sundays of Lent highlighted some important events in the life of Jesus: the Temptation in the desert and the Transfiguration. Last Sunday’s readings looked at Penance and Reconciliation, revealing the God of mercy, compassion, and forgiveness who patiently calls us to conversion. Today, the Liturgy is on the experience of reconciliation, expressed in the parable of the Prodigal Son. Our attention is drawn to our human response to God’s invitation to experience conversion, which constitutes our acceptance of God’s offer of forgiveness.

The Book of Joshua describes the conquest of Canaan at the hands of Joshua, Moses’ successor as leader of the tribes of Israel. Before leaving Egypt, the people celebrated the Passover. They kept vigil the whole night, ate the lamb, and then began their journey towards the land God had promised their fathers. Led by Moses and protected by the Lord, they crossed the Red Sea and entered the desert where they were to stay for forty long years. The reading is an account of the conclusion of this long journey. After much wandering, Israel arrived at Gilgal, in the Jericho plain. They are free, out of the desert, and about to take possession of a fertile land. God kept the promises He made to Abraham. To show their joy, they celebrate again the great feast of the Passover, just as their fathers did on the night they left Egypt.

The “disgrace or reproach” that was removed from the people is a reference to their slavery in Egypt, now ended as they established themselves in the Promised Land. The Passover Meal described marks an end to the people’s need for manna, the miraculous food God provided during their desert wanderings. Israel acknowledges that they did not reach freedom by themselves; their own strength did not save them, but by God. This is an image of the Christian life. Like Israel, we are also led out of the land of slavery, that is, from the state of sin before Baptism, and have become children of God. The Hebrews held a great feast at Gilgal to celebrate their liberation and freedom; Christians celebrate our salvation in the Eucharist, the Sacrament that makes present once more the Passover, the Easter of Christ.

St Paul in the second reading discusses his apostolic ministry, a ministry founded on the conversion experience that made him an “ambassador” for Christ. For him, the experience of conversion is like a “new creation” that remakes a person “in Christ”. The intensity of his personal feelings shows through his words, “We entreat you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God”. For our sake, God made Christ to be sin who did not know sin so that we might become the righteousness of God in Him. The consequence of conversion is the same for all Christians: we must share the reconciliation we have experienced in Christ with others. Reconciliation, which appears five times in this short passage, with God is not the result of our goodwill. It is the work of God; He takes the initiative.

The parable of the Prodigal Son is an extremely dense tale, rich with many layers of meaning. It offers, at one time, a phenomenology of the process of conversion, a powerful and even shocking image of the unconditional nature of God’s forgiving love even before we repent, and a sharp rebuke of the self-righteous attitudes typical in the older brother. Each of the three figures in the story carries an important message for us today; just as they did for Jesus’ contemporaries and St Luke’s community. Do we identify with either of these sons? Read against the backdrop of today’s first reading, the parable becomes a story of how the “disgrace/reproach” of the son’s slavery (sin) is rolled back. Like ancient Israelites celebrating the Passover Meal in the Promised Land, the son is offered a festive meal to celebrate his reconciliation: indicating that an authentic conversion leads us to the Eucharistic Table.

The Pharisees and Scribes (elder son) think they are just and perfect; expecting Jesus, as a good person, to be close to them rather than to sinners, tax collectors, and the outcast. Jesus thus addresses them and all of us who think ourselves better than others and want to dictate the rules to everybody else. Jesus shows that God is deeply concerned with those who are sinners. He does not discriminate in His love: He loves all, always, and unconditionally. God is compared to a Father who loses two sons. One actually leaves the house, led to a place where sin is made to look like fun and trapped in destructive, sinful patterns of living, but comes back later on. The other, who has never left the house – self-righteous – is lost as much as his brother. The Father welcomes both as his beloved children home with feasting and rejoicing. He is happy they have come back to Him. In God’s love, not to have sinned is a good thing: but to be able to get up after a fall, help each other, and return to God again, is still a greater thing. Return to God, He will welcome and rehabilitate you, and restore you to your dignity, for His love saves. All have a place in God’s heart.

We wish and pray God’s Blessings on all who celebrated a birthday, anniversary, special occasion, and Thanksgiving in March, the Ghana Month. God richly bless you and your intentions.

Dear Students, we encourage you to make the Chaplaincy environment an essential part of your life as you stay on Campus and its environs. Make the best out of your programme of study: it will surely lead you to your glorious destiny. Let us start and intensify our preparation for the examinations. Our forgiving Father hopes we imitate Him. He shows us His unfailing mercy, pardon and grace. God is happy when we come back to Him. May our Lenten observances reconcile us to God. Please, do take good care of yourselves! God bless you. Pax!

Please remember to stay well, healthy, and safe. Do not be afraid to attend Mass. Observe the safety protocols. Your life is dear to us.

Have a Blessed and Fruitful Week.

God bless and keep you safe.

Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Pray for Us.
