Equipped for Christian Life After Jesus' Departure.

Dear People of God, we celebrate the Sixth Sunday of Easter, Year C. The Holy Spirit is God's radiant glory, enlightening the Church and guiding it in all its decisions. By listening attentively to the Spirit promised by Jesus, the early Church resolved the question of whether Gentile converts needed to observe certain Jewish ritual practices. When we have problems in our homes, the domestic churches, instead of giving up, we should call on the Holy Spirit for direction and discernment. The Spirit will teach us the full truth if we pray to Him and keep our ears and hearts open to Him. All are called to dwell in the heavenly Jerusalem, founded on the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

Today's first reading gives an example of how the Holy Spirit intervened in the early Church, which faced the question as to whether the traditions of Israel should be imposed on new converts: the controversy created by God's gift to Gentiles of faith in the Lord Jesus. What was initially an entirely Jewish body of disciples only gradually was persuaded by signs and wonders, and painstaking discernment, to fully accept Gentiles into the Messianic community of the Church. The early Church settled these doctrinal issues through a collegial process, which involved the whole Church in deliberation, synodality, listening and journeying together. Everyone has a chance to say what he/she thinks the Scriptures teach. Finally, James sums up all that has been said, putting together the activity of God and the Word: that is, God saving the Gentiles without their permission, as written in the Scriptures. The final decision reached by the Church's leadership in Jerusalem through synodal deliberation, in a divine-human collaboration involving the many people and the Holy Spirit, is communicated and received by the Gentile community of Antioch. The emergence of these internal conflicts and issues within the Church indicates why Our Lord promised the coming of the Holy Spirit in the Gospel passage, namely, to direct the apostles and the Church. The unanimous decision of the early Church in matters of doctrine, spirituality, morality, and structure is a sign of guidance from God, setting forth for us a model of decision-making in the early Church.

The Gospel continues Jesus' farewell discourse. Ideally situated in the Liturgical Year to anticipate the coming feasts of Ascension and Pentecost, the reading tells both of Jesus's immanent departure and His promise of the Holy Spirit, the Paraclete, the Counsellor. After Jesus' departure, the Holy Spirit has the task of leading, teaching and reminding the Christian all that Christ had said. Christ invites His disciples to keep loving Him by keeping His commandments. Central to the passage are the words of Jesus concerning the "Peace" that He gives to His disciples. Peace is His farewell, and His gift to them – a peace that the world cannot give. More than a simple word of greeting, this peace will be a token of Jesus' abiding presence even as He leaves them, just as the Holy Spirit, Paraclete or Counsellor, will provide for the disciples those things which Jesus did for them in His lifetime. Thus, we have a clear picture of a community of disciples who will be cared for and not abandoned to themselves, even when Jesus departs from them. They are promised a divine indwelling, the gift of peace, and the Paraclete to guide and direct them.

Christ's promise of love and peace speaks in every age to the troubled heart of the human person, as well as to the common life of the faithful, and indeed to the whole world in which we live. His gift of "peace", from the Old Testament "shalom", means more than the absence of war or maintaining a balance of power. His gift of peace means the well-being of daily life, a total harmony with nature, with God and self. It issues forth from justice and is experienced in a fruitful land and people, who have plentiful food, and dwell in security, free from fear. "Shalom" is the sum of all the benefits of God's presence with His people. Jesus gives this gift of peace in the widest sense possible to all His followers. His peace is the fruit of the covenant between God and believers. Those who follow the light of Jesus as disciples always walk the paths of peace. Our troubled world needs Christ's gift of peace. We all need this unique and special peace in our lives, minds, hearts, careers, professions, work, relationships, marriages, families, groups and societies, communities, in our chosen ways of life, etc. We need Christ's peace in our doubts, worries, difficulties, challenges; in our sickness and illness, in our brokenness, in our broken homes; in our pains, sufferings, anxieties, fears, troubles, failures, etc. We equally need peace in successes, growth, development, breakthroughs, perfections, etc. Christ's peace is necessary for emotional, psychological, motivational, and social balance in our lives.

The Gospel also teaches that our faithfulness to the Word of God is a sign to ourselves and God that we are Christians. Intimate friendship between Jesus and His disciples reveals Him to the world in the time after His departure. To bear witness to Jesus, two attitudes are necessary. The disciple has to keep on loving Jesus. Physical absence does not necessarily lessen the love for a person. Jesus will be absent physically, but He is going to be present in the hearts of the disciples who love Him. True love of Jesus also requires that His disciples keep His commandment: love. Love is not a nice feeling; it is doing what Jesus wants us to do. Where there is true love and concrete commitment, Jesus says something wonderful will happen: God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit will come and make their home in the heart of that disciple. We become the temple where the Trinity is dwelling: source of true joy, security and peace. As we keep God's Word and live in the Spirit that the Father sends in Jesus' name, we have the most wonderful promise – God comes to us and lives in us. Let us follow God's Word rather than our own notions, so that God will dwell in us.

We say welcome to all our students to the second semester. We hope you had enough rest for yourselves. We encourage all of you to make the Chaplaincy environment an essential part of your lives and stay on Campus and its environs. Make the best out of every programme you are studying: it will surely lead you to your glorious destiny. Remember, we have Christ's gift of peace and the Holy Spirit, the Counsellor, for our guide. He is on standby to teach us all things and remind us of what Christ taught us. Call on Him for direction and discernment always. We are encouraged to Owe, Read, and Live the Bible daily. May God's Grace be with us throughout this Semester. Pax!

Please remember to stay well, healthy, and safe. Do not be afraid to attend Mass. Observe the safety protocols. Your life is dear to us.

Have a Blessed and Fruitful Week.

God bless and keep you safe.

Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Pray for Us.
